THE NORTHERN MAIL failed yesterday afternoon from all points beyond Wilmington.

Snow.-There was a fall of snow, Friday morning last, in the Mill Creek section, about eight miles from Columbia. It was several inches deep in the fence corners.

CLEARANCES.-The ship "James A. Wright" was cleared yesterday, by Messrs. Street Brothers & Co., for Liverpool, with two hundred and thirty-four bags see island and three thousand five hundred and seven bales upland cotton. And Messrs. R. Mure & Co. cleared the British ship "Gorilla," for the same port, with three hundred and twelve bags sea island and two thousand three hundred and thirtythree bales upland cotton.

FATAL OCCURRENCE.-Thomas Noland, seaman, attached to the ship Missouri, fell from the forward part of that vessel overboard as she was proceeding to sea, bound to Boston, on Monday before daylight. As nothing could be seen of him after the occurrence, it is feared that he struck the anchor or some other part of the ship in falling, by which he was rendered insensible and was drowned before he could recover from the effect of the blow.

THE VERY COLD and sharp weather which has been prevailing at the North and the consequent obstruction by ice and other causes of Northern harbors, has delayed shipments of produce to this port, and our merchants in that the highest amount yet to come from some departments of trade have been prevented filling orders from the country with that dispatch which is so desirable; but a short spell of moderate weather, which we are soon likely to have, will no coubt bring along the necessary arrivals.

EXAMINATION AT CHARLEST IN COLLEGE.—The examination of the Junior, Sophomore and Freshman classes of Charleston College, was commenced yesterday at the President's room, and will be continued for three days longer. The students were subjected to a close and searching examination on the different branches displayed a proficiency that was peculiarly gratifying to the Faculty. Applicants for admission have been directed to apply on Monday, the 30th instant, as the Commencement Exercises will be held on the 31st.

AN INCIDENTAL ADVANTAGE.—The establishment of co-operative stores for the middle classes in England proves to be beneficial, not merely in reducing the money cost of commodities to the consumer, but it secures the members against adulteration and loss by false weight. And, as the terms are cash down, a customer never receives a bill with a polite request for payment, for which, if he be remarkably careful, he has preserved a receipt dated several months previously, or which he may remember having paid, and destroyed the receipt. These advantages the Pall Mall Gazette considers quite equal to those more commonly and prominently considered.

THE HEROES OF THE RED SHIET .- One of our fine companies of firemen—the Charleston Hook and Ladder Company, No. 2-propose to give a grand Fireman's Ball, on the 27th April, at the South Carolina Hall. Arrangements are being made to surround the affair with all the accessories of enjoyment and success, and we doubt not that the occasion will be one worthy of the esprit du corps which characterizes the department. Whatever our Charleston firemen dowhether running to a fire, "hollering like mad," drinking lager hier, or standing still— they generally do it with all their might; and the evening of the 27th of April will, doubtless, witness some of the most lively performances with "the light fantastic toe," that have been seen for many a long, long weary day.

THE CITY SQUARE.—This little green spot is in such close proximity to municipal headquarters that it has never suffered from neelect, except during the war when that portion of the city was abandoned. The dead trees have been removed and new shoots planted: fences were repaired, new shell walks laid, and the grass plats cleaned. This was done last summer, but since that time the thousand busy feet that daily pass through the Square have worn the walks into holes, which retained the water and marred the appearance of the grounds. Laborers were busy yesterday in filling up these holes with shells and in restoring the proper grade to the walks. All necessary repairs will also be made, and the City Square be again the casis of the Charles-

THE DELEGATE CONVENTION.—The Republican voters of the city assembled last evening in their several wards at the usual places, and elected six delegates from each ward to meet the delegates from Berkeley on Thursday, the 26th, at the Military Hall, and there make nominations for county officers. We have received the following returns:

Talk on the Bay.

WHAT IS SAID ABOUT COTTON-THE FEELING AMONG MERCHANTS, FACTORS AND PLANTERS-RICE FIRM-GENERAL TRADE PROSPECTS-SHIPPING—CHARLESTON A PREFERRED MARKET,

If there be any true thermometer of the commercial temperature of the State, it is generally to be found on Broad-street and the Bay. When you see the wharves lined with cotton bales, and knots of workmen busy sewing up the rents, and getting them ready for shipment; when you see drays loaded with the staple going to, and loaded with merchandise coming from the ships; when you see the clerks hurrying into the banks and brokers' offices in indefatigable pursuit of "that note;" when you see factors with cotton on their coats, cotton on their whiskers, and cotton in their eyes, you may be pretty sure that everybody has cotton on the brain, and the mercury in the thermometer is up. Such spectacles are comparatively rare in these latter days. Old Charleston, however, holds her own in competition with her sister cities, and any one passing through the business portion of the town vesterday would have felt that there was much of "Life in the Old Land yet."

Conversations here and there reveal the fact that everybody is hopeful for the future, and tolerably well satisfied that the things of the present are no worse, Merchants and factors have suffered heavily from bad debts, and their faith in human nature grows smaller by degrees and beautifully less with every day's publication of some new name added to the list of bankrupts. But somehow they manage to thrive themselves, and the stocks on hand are in most cases large and inviting.

Money, as we are informed, is more abundant than it was thirty days ago, and is offered at nine and ten per cent. on long investment. It is undoubtedly being hoarded for the purchase of such securities as may be offered at the Savings' Institution sale next month.

What will be done this year in cotton? This is a question which all men are anxious to hear answered. Two facts may be definitely stated; first, that there is a disposition among most planters to put in large crops; secondly, that there is not a disposition among factors to make such large advances as were made last year. Unfortunately for both parties the season was bad, and both suffered. The sudder rise in cotton benefitted neither as a class, since the material could not be held sufficient ly long to reap the harvest, and both are therefore now in the slough of despond. This condition of things is well attested by the slow sale of guanos, phosphates and other fertilizers. The planters absolutely have no money with which to buy, and will necessarily be compelled to resort to the use of ordinary stable manure, and domestic composts, for the enrichment of their soil. Doubtless the planter is animated by the same hopes that stir the hearts of the factor and merchant. From more than one person, whose judgment is deemed valuable, we yesterday heard the prediction that in sixty days from now, and perhaps in less time, the price of cotton will advance to thirty cents a pound. Ask the reason of this statement, and you will be told that the stock on hand has suddenly and rapidly diminished. The receipts which three weeks ago at one port were twelve thousand bales, the next week dropped to six thousand, and last week to five thousand bales. You will also be informed, by the best judges South Carolina is only about twenty-five thousand bales, fifteen thousand of which are in that section of the State west of the Congaree and Broad Rivers. Again, cotton on the Mississippi has been hurried to market, while the prices ruled high, and before the annually expected drought in that region; so that the demand in Liverpool for American cottons will be so greatly in excess of the supply that a elight advance there will naturally renew the speculative tendency on this side of the Atlantic. Within a comparatively short period the stock on hand in our Southern ports has dropped from one hundred thousand bales, in Liverpool correspondent, "has alarmed the arrive. Again, we are told that if there is any policy calculated to increase the tendency to high prices, it is that now being carried out by the Freedman's Bureau in issuing rations to the negroes, thus supporting them in idleness, to the great detriment of both the Upland and Sea Island crop. Probably this latter view of the case is that which leads men to predict that the next crop will not largely exceed trade, who have been trying to protect themselves by purchases both on the spot and to

1.500,000 bales. In rice the feeling is firmer. But little will be raised in South Carolina. Governor Aiken thinks that his crop this year will not exceed eight thousand or ten thousand bushels, scarcely one-tenth of the crop of former years. The great competitor of South Carolina rice is the Rangoon rice, which, according to the depreciation in gold, enables the importer to put it on the market at rates greatly below those at which we can afford to sell.

With reference to general trade we find merchants along the Bay, engaged in furnishing plantation supplies, materially effected by the Bureau distribution above referred to. Collections are backward, and quite a number of parties who were considered good in January, have since become seriously embarrassed. There is, therefore, a general disposition on the part of responsible houses to confine their business to cash transactions, and it is a matter of frequent occurrence that orders from the country, when unaccompanied by cash, are, in military parlance, "respectfully returned, disap-

Our wharves present a goodly array of foreign and coastwise shipping, but the unprecedented condition of our cotton marketfactors holding firmly at prices equal to one and a half pence sterling above Liverpool-has put a stop to nearly all shipments; and freights are a drug in the market.

In this connection, it is a significant fact that the cotton market of Charleston is so much preferred to that of New York or Liverpool that holders of the staple at all interior points have changed the destination of their consignments, and are contented to receive the handsome proceeds of a domestic sale.

The rubbish on the surface will be used for that purpose whenever practicable; the sides of the cellars will also be dug down and a uniform level obtained. The fencing will be placed along King and Queen streets, and wherever the burnt district is intersected by prominent streets. This will be given the same cream tint as that on Meeting-street.

"WASHINGTON AVENUE "_A number of public spirited citizens are considering the feasability of opening Washington-street from its present terminus at Laurens-street, on the prolongation of the same line, to Market-street, at or near the corner of East Bay street. It has been ascertained that such an opening would make a wide and commodious avenue from the front of the splendid new customhouse buildrelieving East Bay, which is narrow and crooked above Society-street, of a portion of it usual crowd of drays and other heavy vehicles.

CROWDS .- They are coming! They are here! and from every point of the compass they bring the greenbacks with them. Our hotels are resping a harvest. The lobbies of the Charleston and Mills House last evening was like a scene in an oriental mosque when the pilgrims gather around the shrine. Merchants and clerks, officers of the army and navy, foreigners and home people-all sorts and all conditions mingled in the throng, and reminded one of those ante bellum hours when we used to hob-nob on more gracious subjects than at present titillate the ear. The troupe showed their good sense in retiring immediately.

THE OPERA LAST NIGHT .- The opera troupe began their brief season last night in a manner that presaged a brilliant success. The subject of Gounod's opera "Faust" is so well known arrested, and the owner lost both her milk and that it is not necessary here to give even a sketch of the plot; but it may be mentioned that its musical treatment by the distinguished Russian composer is such as to task the enerone having a stronger claim to notoriety than gies of any company which undertakes its execution. Full of catching melody, sprinkled with airs which ring continually in the popular ear, it is characterized by fanciful and peculiar accompaniments which require the closest care and most even balance on the part of the orchestra, while the harmonies of the concert ed music demand precision and steadiness, as clothes was arrested. His sin had found him well as force, on the part of soloists and chorus.

The house was crowded, and the company had all the encouragement that can be given and burning was stopped and the owner asked by an intelligent and refined audience. As before said, the performance was, on the whole, very successful, and it is now a certainty that the season will be a decided success. P. "Der Freischutz" will be substituted in its place, and on Wednesday evening the beautiful opera of the "Magic Flute" will be performed. On both evenings M'lle Frederici will sustain the leading parts.
